Oil giants Enterprise and Chevron are proposing to build a massive crude oil storage facility, offshore pipeline, and export terminal off the Texas coast known as the Sea Port Oil Terminal Project, or SPOT. The pipeline would run from an existing oil terminal near Houston through critical sea turtle nesting habitat, and connect to a platform 30 miles offshore.